

A Rhyme For An Absent Captain

4/20/00

Sail upon a sunlight bay, blue
My captain I remember you.
Then in the breeze that comes ashore
Here salt and summers linger more.

Captain is your watch at end here,
And are you sure that I can steer
The shoals that reach to stop our way hidden underneath this bay

Yes, I've taught you how to go, dear
When sail to change, weather draws near
And one more thing, remember me
Each time you gaze out on the sea.
